MCSE: Communication

Solutions Expert

The globally recognized standard for IT professionals

Note This certification will retire on March 31, 2017. When the certification retires, all individuals whose transcripts list this certification as active on or after September 26, 2016, will retain the active status.

Find out about the replacement certification, MCSE: Productivity.

Validate your expertise in creating a consistent communications experience for your organization and in connecting your colleagues to people around the world.

Earning an MCSE: Communication certification will qualify you for a position in network and computer systems administration.

New exams covering Skype for Business are now incorporated into the MCSE: Communication credential. The new exams replace Lync Exam 336 and Exam 337, which are scheduled to retire soon after the Skype for Business exams are released.
